In addition to federal financial aid, you may also be able to get financial aid from your state government, school or a private scholarship. Research nonfederal aid early (ideally, start in the spring of your junior year of high school). Be sure to meet all deadlines!

INTRO TO FINANCIAL AID

Most financial aid is provided by the federal and state governments. Colleges, scholarship organizations, and employers are also important aid sources.

Financial aid can include:

- "Self-help", consisting of interest-subsidized loans and work-study.
- "Gift aid", consisting of grants and scholarships. Gift aid is more attractive, of course, because it doesn't have to be paid back and doesn't place additional demands on the child.

The amount and type of financial aid offered is based on two factors:

- The student's financial need
- The student's merit (scholastic, athletic, musical, etc.)

FINANCIAL AID ELIGIBILITY

Three basic ingredients determine how much need-based aid your child is eligible for.

- The Cost of Attendance (COA). Every school calculates its "cost of attendance" based on federal guidelines.
- The Student's Resources. This is the dollar amount provided to the student from outside sources such as scholarships or tuition paid directly to the college by a grandparent or employer. The student's resources reduce the COA, and therefore the need-based aid award, on a dollar-for-dollar basis.
- The Expected Family Contribution (EFC). This is the amount your family will be expected to pay for college based on your particular financial circumstances.

To qualify for federal student aid (grants, loans, and work-study funds), you have to meet certain requirements.

GRANTS

The federal government provides grant funds for students attending colleges, career colleges and universities. Grants, unlike loans, do not have to be repaid. Click the links below to learn more about grant programs available for eligible students pursuing a postsecondary education.

CAMPUS-BASED AID

Campus-based aid programs are administered directly by the financial aid office of each participating school, which has a specific amount of funds allotted to administer each year. When the money for a program is gone, no more awards can be made for that year. Apply for federal student aid as early as you can. Each school sets its own deadlines for campus-based funds, and those deadlines are usually earlier than the Department of Education's deadline for filing a FAFSA. Not all schools participate in all programs. Check with your school's financial aid office to find out which programs they participate in.

There are the current forms of campus-based aid:

- Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant \(FSEOG\)
- Federal Work-Study \(FWS\)

Note: The authority for schools to make new Federal Perkins Loans ended on Sept. 30, 2017.

How much aid you receive from each of the programs depends on:

- Your financial need
- The amount of other aid you receive
- The availability of funds at your college or career school

STUDENT LOANS

Federal student loans allow students and their parents to borrow money to help pay for college. They have low interest rates and offer flexible repayment terms, benefits, and options. Click the links below to learn more.

- Subsidized and Unsubsidized Federal Loans \(a.k.a. Stafford Loans\)
 - Direct Subsidized Loans
 - Direct Unsubsidized Loans

Note: Before July 1, 2010, Stafford, PLUS, and Consolidation Loans were also made by private lenders under the Federal Family Education Loan (FFELSM) Program. As a result of the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010, no further loans will be made under the FFEL Program as of July 1, 2010. All new Stafford, PLUS, and Consolidation Loans come directly from the Department under the Direct Loan Program.

UNDERSTAND WHAT REPAYMENT MIGHT LOOK LIKE

Once you have a realistic idea of your potential income after you graduate, and the amount you need to borrow to meet your education expenses, you'll want to determine your estimated monthly loan payment amount and the amount you'll pay in total for your loan. To get an idea of what your monthly student loan payment will be under available repayment plans, use the Repayment Estimator at StudentAid.gov/repayment-estimator.

LOAN CONSOLIDATION

A Direct Consolidation Loan allows a borrower to consolidate (combine) multiple federal student loans into one loan with a fixed interest rate for the life of the loan. Generally, you are eligible to consolidate after you graduate, leave school, or drop below half-time enrollment. Click HERE to learn more about the direct loan consolidation program.

LendKey (formerly cuStudentLoans) is a network of not-for-profit credit unions that launched in February 2011 offering student loans and student loan consolidation with common underwriting and pricing. Click HERE to learn more.

INCOME-DRIVEN REPAYMENT PLANS FOR FEDERAL STUDENT LOANS

An income-driven repayment plan is a repayment plan that sets your monthly student loan payment at an amount that is intended to be affordable based on your income and family size. The U.S. Department of Education offers four income-driven repayment plans:

1. Revised Pay As You Earn Repayment Plan (REPAYE Plan)
2. Pay As You Earn Repayment Plan (PAYE Plan)
3. Income-Based Repayment Plan (IBR Plan), and
4. Income-Contingent Repayment Plan (ICR Plan)

Most federal student loans are eligible for at least one income-driven repayment plan. You can estimate your payments under these plans using the Repayment Estimator at StudentAid.gov/repayment-estimator.
